THE RUSSIAN
2007
AIR SHOW

Exposição e exibição
Aeronáutica Russa 2007

Located on the shoreline of Galendzhik lake, some three hours drive from downtown Moscow, Zhukovsky Airport, once a secret test airport, is the perfect location to host the Russian Air Show: the reason is that flying boats are a major concern for Russians designers, so a large mass of water to display their impressive performances was considered a must.

This is a wildlife show. Not only is this a chance to behold the extremely refined stage of Russian aircraft design, but also to watch live and much closer than you could ever do in the west, since European safety regulations concerning flight displays over civilian audiences do not apply in Russia.

So get ready for the noise and the blast, and be welcome to Zhukovsky for the 2007 Russian Industry Air Show.
